

Certificate in Theology Examiner Reports – Semester 2, 2009

Christian Leadership and Management

Essay

A reasonable outline to the question was given however students should keep in mind that statements need to be both supported by evidence and integrated into the argument of the essay as a whole rather than simply given. Statements of opinion need to be avoided and all statements need the support of evidence.

Exam

Q4—Both concepts asked for in the question were outlined however their interplay needed to be more significantly explored

Q5—This answer was well dealt with the only addition may have been an investigation of the need for all styles of Christian leadership and personality to be subject to Christ

Q8—The section dealing with team work in this answer was well treated however the response was limited in regard to the questions terms of reference in regard to personal responsibility, discipleship and accountability.

Q10—The answer provided a basic response to the question, the linking through to biblical steps was there but was not as tightly drawn as necessary.

Nathain Secker
25/11/2009

Christian Worship

This is constructive essay in which the student explores the nature of gathered worship interacting with writers whose work is pertinent to the argument of the work. The student helpfully explores the place of preaching and communion in Sunday worship from a biblical, historical theological and biblical perspective. The conclusion reached is that preaching and the sacrament of communion have the same importance as each other in public Christian worship. It is quality reflective exercise that has logically written up.

The student answered question 3, 6, 7 reasonably well and demonstrated an understanding of the questions and applied him or herself to answering them. In case of question 3 the student did not stay focus in the answer given and that did not assist them. This is the only student I have had to assess this year.

John E Reid
20/11/2009